Robbins of Putney came into pos-session of another old book, which came to her through her uncle's heirlooms. It is a Bible, on the fly leaf of which is written, "Marcy Rawson, her book. Dec. 21, 1758." It has the scribe's seal on it as if it were given her at her christening. It is printed in old-style English.

Emulating Pershing at Devens.

The new school for general officers, which was begun at Camp Devens yes-terday, should do more to build up co-ordination among all the arms of the service than any other effort yet undertaken in the cantonments on this side of the water. Its story, however, has not all been told when this point has been set down to its credit. Another great advantage of the new school is the recognition it gives to the fact that no man can successfully be both teacher and pupil at the same time. In all his work as hief of the American expeditionary force, General Pershing has admitted this principle. Most of the advanced training arranged for our officers in France is conducted in special schools, and officers attending them are detached from all concerns except the business of study.

In the American camps, on the other hand, in so far as we have allowed officers any additional instruction after they have completed their first "Plattsburg" training and received their commissions, it has been given them chiefly in conjunc-tion with the manifold duties of their regular commands. They have remained responsible for carrying out the drill and instruction of the men in their companles. The result has been that advanced courses under the British and French of ficers could not be pursued with the singleness of purpose, the freshness of mental and physical effort, necessary to the task. The Americans were already too absorbed with their own work as teachers to be qualified also as good pupils. Moreover the advanced schools, under these conditions, could not be organized with the completeness and extent of curriculum essential to the development of anything like full co-ordination. All these shortcomings have been condoned by the war department on the theory that there would be time enough in France to give our officers the training there is no mind on earth capable of oredicting how much time may be available for completing the training of units hands! * Then the train pulled out, and what do you suppose happened the one right thing to do on this side of the Atlantic is what General Pershing is loing behind the fighting lines—to wit, naking the best possible use of every ing! What d'you know? Chattering away in their confounded foreign language, one minute, and laughing, and holding up their kids, and the next minute busting out crying! By back, said 100.

sugar, because in the production of this delicacy, Vermont is the leading state. While there has been attached to the sugar crop much sentimental value, maple products have in late years been considered a luxury and the importance of these products in the sugar supply of the nation is probably not generally appreciated. Commissioner of Agriculture E. S. Brigham has recently taken a census of the members of the State Maple Sugare Makers' association to gather data regarding the 1918 erop of maple sugar and syrup. The year 1918 was not a bumper year for maple sugar because the production of sugar per tree averaged only 2.28 pounds. This is practically the same as the production for 1917, which was considered a poor year. There were tapped, however, approximately 5,500,000 trees, which would give a total scalded. Walter Notemeyer, the production of 12,430,000 pounds of sug-

Equals Hoover's Allowance.

Food Administrator Hoover has allowed a sugar consumption of 36 pounds per capita. This allowance would give Anniversary services commemorating Vermont, in round numbers, 12,800,000 pounds. Therefore Vermont maple sugar orchards nearly supplied the needs of the state, of course, this does not mean ginning yesterday. At the Church of the Wermonters will not need white the Messiah in St. Johnsbury the 50th sugar, because Vermont maple sugar and contribute to the sugar supply of the nation nearly as much sugar as she con- conflict six months. As far as man sumes.

The price for sugar, as indicated by the census, was 22 cents a pound, as against 15.8 cents received in 1917. The price received for syrup this spring was $1.88 as against $1.37 received in 1917. In many cases these prices also included the package. Making due allowance for this and for the fact that persons responding to the census cards probably received better than average marketing. we still have a revenue of $2,000,000 for the 1918 crop of sugar and syrup.

Vermont farmers deserve credit for their enswer to the nation's call in producing this, the first crops of 1918. La-bor shortage and increased costs on every hand made it very difficult to operate sugar places and it is an illustration of the patriotism of Vermont farmers that in spite of these handicaps, more trees were tapped in 1918 than in the year preceding.

In all our hopes of service, we three Y. M. C. A. workers never had a vision of selling chewing gum! But while I hand out 'three gums' I can listen to the lad lean ing on my little counter. 'Say, what's chewing gum in French? I wanted to tell a French lady how to use it, and I didn't know what they called it in their lingo. Well, now, I think a good deal of these ladies over here.
